

Perhaps you will be interested in a description of our new location. We are on a hill.
(He said that Logan is built on seven hills. I would say on seven prominent abed recently - seven hills.) The street leads to the garden which is outside in the old "missiones" (Missions) and are early convent. At the time the Catholics were driven from Lisbon and their mission became a factory.
Later it was bought and used by the Jesuits.
Here it was bought by

The Spanish monks who still use it. The church is small for Madrid. In the old part was a "parish" which the third part consisted of "parish houses" or "parish" (parish) which is built on the factory which was the mission and the houses were the houses of the monks. The houses are built on the corner, as a store, as we have seen a grocery store here being about the same size and you have a part down. Perhaps not quite. Here it is not really called a grocery store. In
